ProCKSI - Bug #30
Check domain name of email address before accepting request

11/23/2007 04:00 PM - Anonymous

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Status: | New | Start date: | | |
| Priority: | Normal | Due date: | | |
| Assignee: | Anonymous | % Done: | 0% | |
| Category: | | Estimated time: | 0.00 hour | |
| Target version: | 9.1 | | | |
| Resolution: | | | | |

Description

 - Currently, email addresses are accepted if they adhere to the general syntax of an email address:

 [label1[.label2]]@[furtherleveldomains.]secondleveldomain.topleveldomain

 This means that something like _x@xxx.xx_ is perfectly valid.

 - In the future, emails should be checked if at least the domain exists, although his does not guarantee that the email address really does exist.